On the Day of Resurrection, the Messenger of Allah (pbuh) will be the first to bear witness.Q: Install passenger virtual hosts on production server I'm using passenger to run various ruby applications in production. I've got everything setup, and working fine, except I have to manually run passenger-install-apache2-module and passenger-install-nginx-module after each deployment. Is there a way to automate this? A: You can use Capistrano, to execute that. You'll have to tell it where to find your root folders, but then the rest is pretty easy: Capistrano Configuration: Passenger. # Deploy via cap deploy #... # Set a custom directory where root folders are # (default is your deploy root) set :deploy_to, "/home/deploy/site/myapp" # Executes every time you deploy after :update, "deploy:restart" def restart `passenger-install-nginx-module` `passenger-install-apache2-module` end You can also control the commands themselves, if you want. A: When you installed Passenger, it's given you a configuration file in /etc/apache2/conf.d. For example, here's my Passanger configuration file: ServerName passenger.example.com DocumentRoot /usr/lib/ruby/gems/1.8/gems/passenger-2.0.4/public AllowOverride All
