mechanically ventilated patients: A systematic review. To estimate the impact of different treatment approaches for Pseudomonas aeruginosa (Ps. aeruginosa) infection on mortality and length of mechanical ventilation in mechanically ventilated patients. We systematically searched MEDLINE and Embase from January 1, 1980, to January 31, 2018, for randomized controlled trials (RCTs) and observational studies that evaluated the impact of treatment approaches for Ps. aeruginosa infection in mechanically ventilated patients on mortality and the length of mechanical ventilation. Eight RCTs and seven observational studies were included. In RCTs, monotherapy compared with combined therapy using antipseudomonal antibiotics was administered in the initial treatment of Ps. aeruginosa infection in 38 (91%) of 42 eligible patients, whereas combined therapy was administered in 47 (78%) of 61 patients. In the initial treatment of Ps. aeruginosa infection, combined therapy was associated with a lower in-hospital mortality (relative risk [RR], 0.63; 95% CI, 0.46-0.87), prolonged mechanical ventilation (RR, 0.73; 95% CI, 0.58-0.93), and prolonged intensive care unit stay (RR, 0.50; 95% CI, 0.40-0.64) than monotherapy. In observational studies, combined therapy with antipseudomonal antibiotics was associated with a significantly lower risk of death (RR, 0.75; 95% CI, 0.63-0.90) and shorter duration of mechanical ventilation (MD, -1.25 days; 95% CI, -2 c9d1549cdd

This is a story-driven puzzle game with a strong emphasis on exploration. Controls Mouse: Move the Block Spacebar: Click to Pick Up Block White blocks with eyes are the Driven Green blocks with a triangle are the Undriven. The eye blocks are called Driven because the player must drive around the block, or sometimes in between the blocks, to interact with it. The Undriven blocks must be waited on and may only be moved when a Driven block is in front of them. A Driven block can be pushed down to go through another Driven block, or drive across to touch the Undriven blocks, or be pushed in the direction of one of the Undriven blocks to hit and knock it out of place. The Undriven blocks can be pushed into the Driven blocks if there is no Driven block in front of them. There may be more than one of the Undriven blocks in one stack. The Driven blocks will automatically try to push the Undriven blocks out of the way. A throwable Block is a block that can only be used to strike the block next to it. The throwable blocks can be used in a line. Each row of blocks has a direction flag that controls whether moving towards the flag will go through the Driven or Undriven blocks. If there is no Driven block in front of the undriven block, the undriven block will go through the undriven block. Players can't rotate the rotation sliders, but can specify the sliders by clicking and dragging or selecting the first and second sliders. The Undriven blocks can be rotated clockwise and counter clockwise using the rotation sliders. If a block is rotated all the way around, the new direction flag is used. White blocks have energy and will begin fading away if the energy drops too low. If a white block gets hit, it will begin to lose energy and turn green. The player can begin tapping with the mouse to temporarily replenish the energy. The player must tap one block at a time, but it can be done in any order. When a block takes energy, it will lose visibility. Tap: Add Energy Tap Again: Energy is complete Tap while a white block is visible: Add +0.5 Energy Tap while a green block is visible: Add +1
