I am trying to make a program in VBA to cut a username from a longer username, and keep the rest of the text in a new cell. I am having an error with the For Each. I tried putting a Do While with a different If statement, but I couldn't get it to work. Sub cutnames() Dim username As String Dim output As String username = Range("F1") output = "" For Each username In Range("F2:F150") If InStr(username, "L") = 0 Then output = InStr(username, " ") End If End If Range("H2") = output End Sub A: Why not use.Find? Sub cutnames() Dim username As String Dim output As String username = Range("F1") output = "" For Each username In Range("F2:F150") If Not InStr(username, "L") = 0 Then If InStr(username, " ") > 0 Then output = InStr(username, " ") End If End If Next username Range("H2") = output End Sub Tachyarrhythmias are abnormal heart rhythms characterized by a rapid heart rate. Tachyarrhythmias generally include supraventricular tachyarrhythmias (SVTs) and ventricular tachyarrhythmias (VTs). SVTs include ectopic heart beats arising from a location within the heart other than the sinoatrial node (or an atrium). For example, ectopic atrial tachyarrhythmias generally involve abnormal atrial rhythms resulting from electrical or mechanical causes. SVTs are abnormal heart rhythms that are frequently the result of abnormal excitability of the upper
