Co-workers are committed to become one another's friends. Friendship is not competition, it is friendship. This is a sign of growth in the life of a person and the relationship between friends. Join youth in encouraging each other in a way that will enable one another to live a mature Christian life. There is an eagerness to know what God really wants. Often youth today say that they want to know the truth, but are not sure how to find it. The Adventist Youth have a method of searching for the truth that youth of all ages can use. There is a need to be humbly honest about what we are and what we have. Youth have got it wrong, and need to be humbly honest with themselves. Youth need to hear that they are not perfect and need to be honest with themselves so they can change. Youth need to be honest with each other and be able to name their weaknesses so they can be corrected. Youth need to seek God, and accept His forgiveness for their mistakes and failures. Youth need to develop a mature faith in Christ so they can live a life of Christian character and integrity. Fellowship with youth and adults is a sign of maturity. Youth need to be spiritually strong and serve others in an effective way. Youth need to see the spiritual and physical difference in their lives. They need to be thankful that Christ came to rescue them. They need to believe the promise that if they humbly seek His help and take His help, then God will work powerfully in their lives. I will lead, direct, and teach these students to know, love, and follow God. Youth today live in a world where many people are not bound to God in their daily lives. Youth need to be a part of the whole family of God, and the best way is to be a part of the Adventist youth. Join their programs and activities.
