Why should I play Elden Ring:

Let's see what they have to say:

- Square Enix Official Website
- Eurogamer's review of the game
- Kotaku Australia's review of the game
- Chudotv's opinion

Hannu Takka: "I've been playing RPGs for so long that I feel the game will shock players. Elder Scrolls Online and Final Fantasy XIV are magnificent titles, but their playerbase is limited to a few people. So far, they have already attracted a niche; I wanted to create such a game for this present and future. I put a lot of thought into the combat."

"Wakfu is a tiny digital island, which is a place of immense size. There are mountains and valleys, enormous monsters, and the vast number of features that players demand. It was time to create a whole new world."

Sleep > Death. HP are added to the character card when you hit enemy's character card. Strength increases by attack. Attack power is not obtained until the character card finishes. When the HP of the enemy's character reaches 0, they become unconscious, and if their HP is 0, they die. After finishing, the HP of the character card is increased as well. If the HP of your character card becomes 0, you will be put into an unconscious state for 3 seconds and will not be able to attack. If a team member of yours dies, your team will lose as well. When you start the battle, the HP of your team members will be decreased by 50%. You will lose a part of your team members' HP and you will lose the battle when you lose all of your team members. Heal power increases by attack. You will be able to heal your team members when you have a HP. Players will lose life when they are attacked or when they use skills. You will lose health when a skill consumes your life. You can buy items from A-rank armors to health. You will lose health when using a skill while the cooldown of that skill is still being used. When you use the speed skill, you will lose time. At the end of the battle, you will lose health. When you use certain skills that consume mana, you will lose mana. You will lose mana when you use certain skills that consume mana. When you use stinger, you will lose mana until your next turn. When you consume mana and your MP is full, you will recover your mana. When you have insufficient mana and you use certain skills, you will lose MP. Your manabrass will be used up when you gain a certain amount of HP. Skill cooldown and skill charge are not calculated until you finish using the skill. Skill cooldown increases depending on the damage dealt. The sword skills consume mana, while the bow skills consume health. When you use the native I'm starting a react native project. I'm new in react native. I'm facing an issue on image render on every screen size. The same image is showing on every screen. Here is my code: export default class Test extends Component { constructor(props) { super(props); this.state = { index: 2 }; } render() { return ({this.state.index}); } } I need to find a workable solution of this issue. A: You can use backgroundImage and add the Image in contentStyle import React, { useState }
