With “HyperMotion” the team got the same “feel” for football as they do in real life. A football match is characterized by movement and gameplay is characterized by speed and pace. "A real-life player and computer generated player are created from the same motion capture data. Since every player in the FIFA 22 game is driven by real-life data from a high intensity real match, you'll experience a 'feel' for the game that is like no other FIFA game has ever had before." You can check out more gameplay footage and the announcement trailer for FIFA 22 below. The game is currently set for a release on September 14th of this year.

Duos, Op. 34 Duos, Op. 34, No. 4, is a work for solo violin and piano composed by Peter Racine Fricker in 1975. It was premiered at the Salzburg Festival in 1976.

History In 1975, Fricker was commissioned by the New York Philharmonic to compose a concerto for violin and orchestra. When this was not possible he composed his four most celebrated pieces: Two Piano Trios and a String Quartet for the Ensemble Intercontemporain. Like the String Quartet, the Trio for Violin and Piano, Op. 33, is well known for its evocative title, Duos. Despite the fact that Fricker had often written duos with the violinist Sonja Litwin (who was a frequent collaborator at the time) as well as with Peter Stomatas, this one was the first written explicitly for them. When Fricker dedicated the piece, he also wrote: An unpublished 12" recording of the duo was made by the University of Rochester Symphony Orchestra under the conductor James Levine. It has been released on CD as part of From Russia with Love with violinist Susan Denoncour and the violinist-pianist duo Helmut de la Court and Sandra Schutte, under the direction of the composer. It also featured Bernstein's arrangements of Pachelbel's Canon, Beethoven's Sonata No. 3, and Mozart's C major sonata.

Instrumentation The piece was originally scored for violin and piano.

Structure The work is in three movements: The first movement lasts roughly 5-6 minutes. The second movement lasts 4-5
