directed by Rakesh Varma. The film stars Arshad Warsi, Kunal Kapoor, Kajal Agarwal, Julie Hardej and Neeraj Sane. Our invention relates to the commercial production of composite tubing structures wherein a polymer is employed as one of the adhered components. A particularly advantageous composite is the so-called rigid foamed tubing that utilizes a polyethylene outer skin over the normally corrugated inner structure. Such rigid foamed tubing is commonly manufactured in commercial quantities wherein the corrugations are produced by a known twisting and crimping operation. In the manufacture of such rigid foamed tubing, the outer skin is bonded to the inner polyethylene structure that is bonded to the outer skin.
In prior commercial practice, it is common to utilize adhesive systems in order to accomplish this with the inner tubing being so dimensioned as to permit the inner polyethylene tubing to be passed through a suitable mold such as a corrugator and to thereafter permit the adhesive tape that is bonded to the outer skin to be passed over the inner tubing, followed by subsequent curing of the adhesive, and removal of the adhesive to provide the final product. As stated, rigid foamed tubing of the above type generally employs an inner polyethylene structure and an outer skin.
The inner tube has been formed from polyethylene material, and it is bonded to the outer skin. In addition to serving as a utilitarian plastic, the outer skin also
