Sender Serial Key, MirrorOp Sender Registration Code.RCMP say a person who was in an area south of Edmonton was struck and killed early Tuesday morning by a horse-drawn buggy driven by a man. "I saw the horse going down the street," said eyewitness Cynthia Topper. The incident happened around 3:30 a.m. at the intersection of Macleod Trail and 105 Avenue in the Sunridge development in south Edmonton. The woman is pronounced dead on scene after being hit by the buggy. (CBC) One witness said the horse was hit with a chain and the buggy dragged the animal a few hundred metres before it died. No one else was hurt. Topper said the driver stopped to try and help the woman before running to his home in the area. "He couldn't even turn off his lights," she said. "It wasn't until he got halfway there that he realized what had happened." The driver, according to police, was the only person on the buggy. "The driver was a gentleman and seemed very shaken," said Topper. "He sat there and cried for a while. He just kind of cried. It was like he couldn't believe he just killed somebody." While it was not immediately clear how the horse died, police say the incident appears to have been an accident. No charges are being laid. The investigation is ongoing. More details are expected to be released when the man is identified.

Q: What to put after while (1) do { ? What are the differences in performance and usage if I put a looping statement after do..while (or while(1)) and also when I put my looping statement in the beginning? Like this: do { //Do something and then } while (1); vs while(1){ //Do something } A: The two versions are equivalent. 3e33713323
