15,946+ user. Native Instruments Battery 3 - Sound Forge.. R2R.Kontakt.5..Q: cocoa, can't get proper animation for view with shadow I have a view with shadow, and I want to animate the shadow move with alpha changing to 0. When I set the alpha directly, the shadow appears ok, but the alpha is 0, but when I set the animation (with keyframe) to 0 to 0, it's ok, but then the alpha didn't change.
I have set the mode to "subtractive" for the shadow and this mode should make alpha changeable. what's the problem? A: I found the problem, the shadow can't have the opaque property with the transparentColor. A: If your view has a background color that isn't opaque, it won't match the opaqueShadowColor and you won't get the result you want. The default is a RGBA color with a translucent alpha of 0. It's perfectly acceptable to let your background have 0 alpha, and it's certainly reasonable to have that reflected in your shadow, but when you want to have a transparent shadow, make sure your background doesn't have 0 alpha. A: If you have a view in front of the one with the shadow (and it is a flat color, not gradient) the shadow behaves strangely. I've tried to post a screenshot but apparently the system doesn't allow the posting of images for a question. What I noticed is that the transparency of the shadow is changed when you set the shadow to 0,0,0,0 but if you add a background color of the same color on top of the view the shadow will be the same all the time. Instead, if you have a view that is a flat color you can also colorize the shadow. In that case you have to change the shadow color to something transparent while you are changing the alpha value on the shadow. 7 5 5 C o n v e r t

Kyle Snedeker Kyle Patrick Snedeker (born November 3, 1973) is a former professional American football quarterback. He played college football at Ohio State University and was drafted by the San Francisco 49ers in the first round of the 1996 NFL Draft. He has also played for the New England Patriots and Detroit Lions. In the 1997 NFL Draft, Snedeker was the NFL's highest-drafted quarterback. Although he was drafted out of Ohio State University, he never played for the Buckeyes. This is because he transferred from Ohio State to the University of San Diego. College career Snedeker attended Ohio State University, where he played on the Ohio State football team from 1991 to 1995. He led the team to the 1992 Big Ten Championship game, and set numerous school records during his career. Snedeker also led San Diego State to a Pacific-10 Championship in 1996. Professional career San Francisco 49ers Snedeker was drafted by the San Francisco 49ers with the ninth pick in the 1996 NFL Draft. He made his NFL debut on September 11, 1996, against the Detroit Lions. He split carries with Ken Dorsey. Snedeker was the third quarterback to start for San Francisco since Alex Gramatica was injured. He received limited playing time in 1997 and was replaced as San Francisco starter by Phil Simms. New England Patriots Snedeker signed with the New England Patriots in 1998. He took over as starter the next year, and led the team
