Photoshop Layer Masks The easiest way to work on an image is to use its layers. On a layer called

_Layer 1_, for example, you can apply a large filter or even explode a mask onto the layer. In other words, you can turn the layer into a selection tool by adding a simple mask to the layer. Think of a layer as a sheet of clear plastic that you can lay over your photos. You can use the plastic to cover areas of the image you don't want, or you can remove part of the image on the plastic. The plastic and your photo are transparent, so any details underneath the plastic will show through. The layer mask controls the transparency of the plastic. On the Layers panel, each layer has a small icon. You can click the icon to check the layer's transparency level, or you can double-click the icon to open the layer's dialog box (Figure 3-5 shows two layers with masks, one of which is transparent. The others are white. When you double-click the layer masks, you see the dialog box for each layer. You can click the Transparency check box and enter a percentage to make the layer completely transparent \(%\), completely opaque \((100%\)) or half transparent \((50%\)). For more about layer masks, see the box on Understanding Transparency and Masks.")) to adjust the transparency percentage. A transparent mask is represented by the word "Transparency" on the layer's icon. And when you double-click the layer mask, you see a small triangle. That triangle represents the mask that controls transparency. When the mask is on, the transparent areas of the layer mask are transparent in your photo. When the mask is off, the transparent areas are entirely opaque.

will, § 30-24,102(2), nor § 30-24,106 require the personal representative to give notice of the public sale of property to the owners of the homestead interest, although notice to parties having an interest in the estate may be a discretionary matter.
