We've all learned how important a circle of friends can be to our success in life, and lately I've been thinking about the role of the circle of neighbors. Neighbors are the people who live next door, next street, or on the corner, and we often don't know what to make of them. We judge from a distance, and often from the other way around. We see someone's belongings from the street, hear their kids running around, or talk on the phone to them from our yard (without ever meeting their kids) and assume we know them. Neighbors are also the people we fear or envy because they are so normal, or seen as ordinary, whereas we are not. I'm going to share my own set of thoughts and stories about our quirks, struggles, and triumphs together. I'd love to hear your thoughts too--what are some things you've noticed about your neighbors? Are you a regular guest at your neighbors' house? Do you have many neighbors or barely any? We have about a dozen kids living next door, all under the age of 8 (see photo on this post). We've noticed that kids and dogs really don't get along (and dogs don't like kids either...). 3a67dffeec
