Best regards Support Team Did my man, Marlon, do something dastardly and become emo? You bet your ass he did. In the picture above, fellow nerdcore acolyte Sage was bundled in Marlon's arms as they made there way back from X Tour 2012: Hate. Addressing the audience in the hallowed halls of the Howard Theatre, Sage announced that this was his last X Tour appearance. But when the actual tour rolled around, Sage simply couldn't take the long hours of travel. It's a lot for a comic book nerd to swallow. The good news, Marlon says, is that the entire Southern California tour will take place on his home turf, so he won't be travelling so far. However, he still has a new kid named Tommy (the other kid) that he'll need to find a home for. Who needs a home, when you have love? Interview with Marlon: What was it like experiencing the tour for the very last time? Marlon: Wow, that was so intense, and it was so great to hang out with all of you. I was honored and blown away by how many people were there, how many people enjoyed the show. So I have a lot of butterflies this morning, but I'
