Shared dictionaries are really good tools to quickly look up a word, but in the majority of cases, they are not very useful, and you have to check every result to know whether or not it is valid. Some people have developed special dictionaries that they consider more useful because they provide a search-by-example option that uses whatever word you have typed as an input to look up words that are related to it. But there is no need to have all that clutter. Why not create a file containing the most useful words and descriptions? A personalized dictionary is your key to finding the word in a fraction of the time, and it is extremely useful for common and very difficult words, with different word lengths and different descriptions. The search options will get you every time! Let's see how to create a dictionary.

Step 1: Create the dictionary The first step is to create the dictionary, so go to the folder you created in Step 1 of the Tutorial and double-click on the file MyDictionary.

Step 2: Save the file The next thing to do is to save the dictionary. On the top menu bar, click on the Start menu and then select Save. Then, you will have to enter the folder where you want to save the file. You will have to be sure to use the right folder because the location of the file is very important.

Step 3: Add words and descriptions The last step is to create the words and the descriptions. We will create just one word, so in the first column, click on the word and then on the right arrow to add it to the column. We will add the word Python, so we will start typing and when the cursor is at the end of the word, click on Enter to insert the word in the column. Then 2edc1e01e8
