Alexandru-Pietricica-Gramatica-Pdf-Download-chinesisches-greetin. One day i was going to Chinese market to buy some egg yolk when i saw a old Chinese man playing a piece of music in a little music shop. I was surprised and asked him how he was able to play that music. He told me that he was born from a musical family but it was his job to play that music. I was so happy to know that there are still some Chinese musicians still playing their Chinese music. The story of this essay is that the country that have been isolated from the world for over 4,000 years would eventually experience a massive transformation in the third millennium. The modernization of China has brought tremendous changes to traditional Chinese culture, as well as new Chinese music to the whole world. Like me, Chinese people may not know that our history is more than 4,000 years old. China is the homeland of ethnic Chinese. The ancient Chinese people migrated to South East Asia long before the founding of their own countries. As one of the most ancient civilizations, Chinese people have inherited a unique, ancient and refined culture. At the same time, a common language "Mandarin" has been adopted and preserved in all of the regions of China. So many ancient Chinese culture have fascinated people from all over the world. This essay will introduce some of the ancient Chinese music and some of the changes of traditional Chinese culture which made these ancient Chinese music to flourish today. First, let us have a look at the ancient Chinese music. Through the research of history, different Chinese music has been developed and its characteristics have also changed along with the development of China. There are many kinds of ancient Chinese music including six-stringed stringed zither, five-stringed-stringed and brass instruments. In fact, Chinese people have been using music to communicate with each other for about 4,000 years, and ancient Chinese music is very commonly used in their daily life nowadays. Ancient Chinese people often play the zither and play it in time with each other's music, called a "yin and yang", which is a term used in Confucianism to describe the duality of a natural phenomenon such as the seasons. It is believed that this rhythmical state of the two people will bring them together. As we all know, Chinese people have been playing music from the time of Confucius. Confucianism is an ancient Chinese philosophy which is also known as "Way of the Great Sage". This philosophy is similar to the way of life of the ancient Chinese people.
