Q: async/await doesn't seem to work with jest's.toBe(.....) I have a test that starts some threads and in this test I want to make sure all threads finish before doing something else. This is the test: `test("My test", async () => { const myThread = new MyThread(); const otherThread = new OtherThread(); await myThread.start(); await otherThread.start(); await myThread.finish(); await otherThread.finish(); const myThreadIsFinished = await myThread.isFinished(); const otherThreadIsFinished = await otherThread.isFinished(); expect(myThreadIsFinished).toBeTruthy(); expect(otherThreadIsFinished).toBeTruthy(); });` This is the class MyThread: `class MyThread { async start() { await new Promise(resolve => setTimeout(resolve, 1000)); } async finish() { await new Promise(resolve => setTimeout(resolve, 2000)); } isFinished() { return this.finishPromise; } async isFin`
