Canada is top producer of conventional oil in North America, according to data released by the US Energy Information Administration (EIA). The US EIA said Canada produced 5.0 million barrels of conventional oil per day in 2014. That compared with 4.1 million barrels per day in Saudi Arabia, and was ahead of Venezuela and the United States. Conventional oil is that which is extracted from a single reservoir. Canada's total produced in the united states, 8.4 percent of conventional oil produced in the world, with the fourth largest producer of conventional oil produced in the world. It was the 12th largest producer of conventional oil in the world, with the fourth largest reserves. The EIA cautioned that the production data used in the report does not consider unconventional production. The most important recent report on North America unconventional production in 2013 with 3. 3e33713323
