DHTML Menu Builder Lite is a fully featured and easy to use application for creating beautiful, easy to use menus for websites and blogs. The product comes with all the basics to get you started, making the process of adding items, transitions, effects, as well as using the predefined templates as straightforward as it could be. You can either opt to start a new project or open a blank page to start adding menu items. The menu is easily adjustable with a grid layout and it can be customized to your liking. A color picker makes it easy to decide on the base color of your menu and by clicking a button, you can add custom colors and other properties like shadow, transparency, z-index and even unique icons. Adding commands to your menu is easy, as there are various options and actions you can include, such as mouse over, one click, double click, dragging and dropping, scrolling through menus, as well as an endless array of effects and transitions. There are a decent amount of predefined templates to choose from, organized into categories like logo, navigation, shadow, color, background, hover, and other. You can also use a wizard to quickly set up starting parameters and add files to the project. You can either launch the application directly from your computer or add it to your favorites to make creating menus as easy as possible. Online catalog with items from a growing number of online resources You can browse through a catalog of items and choose the one you like best. Simple, fast and intuitive creation process The menus can be created in seconds with the help of a clean and intuitive user interface. There's no need for detailed instructions or lengthy tutorials to get started, as the user interface is extremely easy to understand. You need to specify only two properties: group name, group icon, as well as group color and all the necessary elements for a simple and quick creation process. You can add as many subgroups, subgroup items and commands as you want and the application even features a customizable header with icons, custom colors and other options that can be easily used to customize the menus. No programming knowledge required The menu building process is intuitive, as
