"i am pleased that congress took action to crack down on the sale of looted artifacts by isis," said representative engel. "if the americans do nothing, the world will watch as isis destroys cultural artifacts that are thousands of years old, dating back to the peak of the near eastern empires." the house of representatives just passed h.r. 4640, a bill by my good friend, representative ed royce, to crack down on the sale of artifacts looted by isis from cultural sites in syria. i was proud to be a part of the committee on foreign affairs yesterday. i was proud to see my colleague, representative robert c. young, join the entire committee in supporting this bipartisan legislation. the overwhelming support we received from all parties shows that we are united in addressing this bipartisan issue. the legislation would establish an international law enforcement framework to crack down on the illegal sale of artifacts looted by the islamic state of iraq and the levant (isil), which is currently holding cultural property in the areas it controls in syria and iraq. it also clarifies the united states' position on the value of cultural property and provides criminal penalties for the illicit trade in cultural property. there are only three reasons why you should use a torrent instead of a cracked program. the first is that you are getting something that is working at its best. a download shouldn't take more than a few minutes. although a cracked version could work well in the beginning, it won't keep working and might have issues down the line. the second reason is that your torrent is often more stable and faster. although it might not be the latest program, a torrent is less likely to have issues than a cracked copy. the last reason is price. cracked copies of programs cost a lot of money, often in the hundreds of dollars. but that is not the case with torrents. a torrent can be as low as $20 or as high as $40 a year.
